Halton Children's Aid Society 100th Annual Report—2013/14

Helping Children, Youth and Families Thrive

Greetings from the Board President/Executive Director

This is our 100th Annual Report and is an opportunity to celebrate "A Century of Caring and More." Child Welfare evolved out of charitable acts and a system of institutions that included orphanages, correctional facilities and the prevention of cruelty to animals. Since then, we have progressed into a more caring system—having learned a few hard lessons along the way—and are in the process of reconciling our role in apprehending aboriginal children during the time of the residential school system.

Child Welfare services in the Halton Region originated in the basement of Knox Presbyterian Church in Milton and we received our charter on February 15, 1914. Services in Halton—and the province—have significantly changed over these 100 years.

Today, over 95% of our children and youth receive services in their own homes. We are located in more than 30 community locations providing early help to families in their own communities, with almost 300 families receiving ongoing services. We are also actively involved in the Our Kids Network, which is a Halton-wide partnership of organizations and agencies serving children and youth.

When children and youth can't live with their immediate families, we focus on finding permanency options through kinship (89), guardianship and adoption (12). Our foster parents partner with us to do this very rewarding work.

We continue to parent older youth (56) who are transitioning out of care. We also provide outreach services to youth who are homeless, or at risk of becoming homeless, through Bridging the Gap who worked with almost 400 youth last year.

We remain committed to successfully launching our youth into adulthood with lifelong connections, education and life skills. The Children's Aid Foundation of Halton fundraised $155,000 to make this happen.

Our YouthSAID Advisory Group keeps the issues that children and youth face in the forefront. They celebrated the official launch of Children and Youth in Care Day on May 14, 2014.

In February, we launched our 100th Anniversary with a community event that showcased our services with participation from staff, children and youth, our Foundation, the Our Kids Network and Bridging the Gap. We look forward to more celebrations as our Anniversary year continues including publishing a keepsake memory book that will highlight the history of the Society through storytelling, testimonials and pictures.

It has been a privilege to have provided services to the Halton communities for 100 years. We could not have done our job without you. Thank you for A Century of Caring and More!!

"YouthSAID is like peanut butter and jelly.
Some things are just meant to be. I am meant to be in YouthSAID. It's like family."
